Women Wanted for R.C.A.F. (WD)

Announcement is made by Pte. Lieutenant W. P. Graham of the R.C.A.F. recruiting centre in Edmonton that training classes for women stenographers under the W.E.T.F. will be started in Edmonton, if there are sufficient girls interested. The same general qualifications as for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. (women's division) are necessary. It is desired to attract bright, intelligent girls who will apply themselves diligently to the course in view of the urgent need for trained stenographers in the Service.

The course will be of twenty weeks' duration, and trainees will continue to live with relatives or friends in the city while studying.

Will interested girls please call at or write to the R.C.A.F. recruiting centre, Provincial Bldg., Edmonton, and get further particulars from Assistant Section Officer, Marjorie Race, R.C.A.F. (WD). Office hours are from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., on week-days and from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Saturdays and from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. on Monday and Thursday evenings. Canadians Will Have to Tighten Belts

OTTAWA.—Certainly before the war is over, and perhaps within the space of a few months, practically everything that Canadians buy, with the exception of grain and other field products will be within the scope of restrictions or prohibitions. Such is the forecast in official circles here.

Restrictive orders are being issued with such unfurling regularity that those channels through which they are handled have not time to make a roundup of what has been done or immediately in prospect. Generally however, the picture is that practically everything will be affected before long.

Rationing of travel hinted at by the transit controller has been talked about vaguely for months. It is steadily nearing. The gasoline situation is no worse, and the coal situation is rather better, but both are far from normal. Driving of cars for pleasure may be of limited duration.

THE LEADERS

One who did not mean to disparage the efforts of men and women in Canada now giving leadership in this country during wartime declared recently,

"Canada's true leaders are the boys in uniform who are fighting on the seas and overseas."

Few will argue against that opinion. Good leadership endures the ability to inspire a people to higher achievement, and there is nothing so inspirational as a good example.

In all the self-denial and hard work required from us at home, we are inspired by our gallant leaders who scour the ocean to protect our troops and war materials, who sweep the skies to shelter our homes and industries, and those who dash into enemy territory to crush the heartless wretches who plunged the world into war.

Each of those Canadian leaders overseas has voluntarily offered to stop living, if necessary, that we may live. Each has turned his back on cheerfulness and pillows and the joy of doing what he likes. Each has forgotten the ease of an eight or ten hour day and the weekly pay envelope that permitted him to buy a new suit or a shirt or to take the girl out to a dance. Each will work twenty-four hours at a stretch when called to do so.

No Canadian soldier puts a limitation on the extent of his service. He is truly going all out for victory.

With such leaders, Canadians will not fail in any task ahead. What Canadian father would drop his tools and stop up war production needed by his fighting son overseas? How many Canadians will deliberately spend money for comfort and amusement, when that money is needed so desperately to give our soldier leaders overseas the last bit of equipment they need to conquer the enemy?

As we read the names of scores of young men who suffered and died on the beaches of Dieppe, how precious few of us will want to withdraw our money from the war chest in order to have a good time with it or to spend it on goods that will make our own lives more comfortable!

The Bomber Press Visits England.

(By Walter R. Legge in Collaboration with C. V. Charters)

The following is the first of a series of articles on Canadian Forces in England written especially for the weekly newspapers of Canada by their two representatives on a sponsored tour of England.

To pay a visit to England under present day conditions, it is first necessary to have government permission or invitation. In the case of the recent visit by Canadian editors, the trip was the result of a suggestion by General McNaughton that a party of Canadian Editors should be given an opportunity to see just how the Canadian forces were living and training overseas.

Two weekly editors were asked to become members of the party and the choice fell to C. V. Charters, managing director of the C.W.N.A., and After brief preparation, the party assembled in Montreal, and prepared to leave for England by Bomber Ferry Command.

Preparation for the trip gives the first definite feeling that one is entering the war zone when the "briefing" takes place. This is a long and serious procedure involving a very complete check of your passport, life details and credentials. Following the clerical details, the prospective voyager is fitted with parachute harness.

This is a heavy and cumbersome affair which has to be fitted quite tightly and leaves the victim feeling that he is something like a trussed ox. After receiving full instructions on how to operate the parachute, measurements are taken for the flying suit which is necessary in most flights which are made at varying heights from 10,000 to 25,000 feet.

Next comes fitting and instructions in the use of an oxygen mask, also necessary at those great heights.

Baggage, which is limited to 40 pounds, is weighed in, and after some further details the passengers are sent back to the hotel with instructions to await a call.

On comparing notes after this routine, we found that nearly every member of the party was told a different story as to when we might start. Some were told that there was no plane available while others were told to be ready at 8:30 the next morning, and others were instructed to expect a call sometime in the middle of the night.

This is probably part of the plan to keep movements as secret as possible. Actually the cars called for us at the hotel early the next morning. The plane for us was a large four-motored Liberator, which had been fitted with two long benches for us to sit on. Seven of our party had left a couple of days before, but other passengers with us made the party up to 18, a fact which did not seem to bother anyone.

Several in the party were going into the air for the first time and could not escape a feeling of indignation. These big machines give a feeling of tremendous power and it did not seem strange to be far above the clouds in a few minutes.

The amount of room in the plane was surprising, and while there was not enough space for everyone to lie down, it was not really crowded. The noise is deafening, and prevents any lengthy conversation. There is really nothing to do but read, but it did not seem a long time before we were over Newfoundland. This is the reality to me, just what the country is like, and the plane coming down to about 5,000 feet, we had a fine view of the country, and could really appreciate the amount of water in this island.

It is a country of fields, bays, lakes and trees, making a beautiful sight from that height. Settlements are few and far between.

Four hours and a half after leaving Montreal, we were gently set down at a huge airport in Newfoundland. Here we were given a pass and taken to Eastbound Inn for dinner.

SEVEN MILLION FOR WHAT

During 1941 owners of motor vehicles in Alberta contributed $7,113,956 in the form of licenses and taxes to the Provincial Government.

These taxes were originally applied to obtain money for good roads, but a large percentage of same is being diverted to other purposes.

The Alberta Motor Association advocates that surplus revenue collected from motorists during the war should be placed in a trust fund (War Loan Bonds) to be used for road building and maintenance when peace comes.

Every owner of a motor vehicle should support this policy.

Modern Pig Management

Recently I was able to visit a number of prairie farmers. I found that many wheat growers, at the earnest request of the Government, have taken up pig production for the first time. Many different methods of pig management were to be seen but some of it unquestionably was bad. On some farms pigs were born hairless, a good percentage of the litter had died and the remaining pigs were not doing at all well.

It is obvious that many wheat growers are not aware of the latest up-to-date labour-saving methods of pig feeding and management. Those who are handling pigs for the first time should, therefore, I suggest, make special efforts to find out from their nearest Experimental Farm or University or Provincial Department of Agriculture, or from their District Agricultural Representative, the methods of feeding and management that would best suit the nature of their individual farms and the feed they actually have on hand.

I am sure that many young pigs now being lost can be saved, that the quantity of grain now fed can be cut down, and that much labour now expended in hauling food and water by hand can be avoided. Sows and litters require sunshine and exercise; growing pigs need sunshine and suitable feed, and above all lots of good clean water.

Scarcity of imported fruit is giving rise to considerable anxiety lest deficiency of vitamin C should result. Fruits are looked upon by a large public as the main source of vitamin C, and mothers who have come to regard orange juice as indispensable for the artificially fed baby and desirable for all children, are often at a loss to know what to use as a substitute.

This very general reliance upon fruit, especially the citrus fruits, is partly due to popular knowledge of their value as antiscorbutics in early voyages. It overlooks the fact, none too well known even to those interested in nutrition, that on the whole most vegetables are much richer sources of vitamin C than most fruits. The proverb about "an apple a day" would have been much nearer the truth if it had run "some cabbages each day". People whose main source of this vitamin is a daily apple get from it only about one eighth of their vitamin C requirements. Plums, blackberries, grapes, pears, melon & bananas are also poor in vitamin C. Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower and the salad vegetables, especially mustard and cress and water cress are seven or more times as rich in vitamin C as the group of fruits last mentioned. Some of these green vegetables, if they are cooked in such a way as to preserve the vitamin, can provide more of it, weight for weight, than does orange or lemon juice.

The optimal amount of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) needed by an average adult is 75 mg. daily. As a matter of convenience an estimate has been made showing the number of hours supply of vitamin C yielded on this basis of 4 oz. portions of all the well known fruits and vegetables. Typical examples arranged in order of merit are as follows:

NUMBER OF HOURS SUPPLY OF VITAMIN C GIVEN BY 4 OUNCE PORTIONS

Blackcurrants	70
Brussels Sprouts—Cooked	35
Mustard and Cress—Raw	28
Australia continue excellent — U.S. crop returns for winter and spring wheat are higher than for many years past—Crop yields in the United Kingdom and Western Europe this year were above yields of last year.

FARM NOTES

IS CORN AN ESSENTIAL POULTRY FEED?

Experimental Farm News

In 1931 the Department of Agriculture published the pamphlet No. 126 entitled "Canadian Grown Grains in Poultry Feeding" from which the following quotation is taken. "Experiments upon the Experimental Farm System have shown that corn may be expected to give slightly superior results to barley for egg production BUT WHEN VITAMIN DEFICIENCY OF THE LATTER GRAIN (BARLEY) WAS COUNTERACTED BY SUITABLE SUBSTITUTES TO THE RATION, SUCH AS COD LIVER OIL AND SUITABLE GREEN FEED, BARLEY BECAME EQUALLY EFFICIENT FOR EGG PRODUCTION".

This conclusion was reached not from an isolated experiment but from a series of twenty-six separate feeding trials carried out over a period of seven years not only at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, but at thirteen Branch Farms of the Experimental Farm System in all provinces of the Dominion. states George Robertson, Dominion Poultry Husbandman.

Similar experiments have been carried on at many of the American State Experiment stations. J. M. Moore reporting from the Michigan Station states:

"To compare barley with corn as a grain for poultry, 2 lots of 80 Rhode Island Red pullets were fed for ten months. The mash fed to lot 1 consisted of ground wheat, finely ground barley, alfalfa leaf meal, meat scrap, steamed bone meal, and salt while lot 2 received a mash made up of yellow corn meal, finely ground oats, bran, four middlings, alfalfa leaf meal, meat scrap steamed bone meal and salt. The scratch grain in lot 1 consisted of equal parts of whole barley and whole wheat and in lot 2 equal parts of cracked yellow corn and wheat. Semi-solid buttermilk was fed once a day, and during the hatching season 1 lb. of cod liver oil was included with each 16 lb. of mash. Oyster shell, water, and lettuce were also fed. An attack of infectious bronchitis caused a high mortality in both lots. Culling the eggs during June and July showed that the yolks of the eggs laid in lot 1 were lighter in color than those laid in lot 2, and that the shells of the eggs in the barley fed lot were not so strong as those in the corn fed lot. The percentage hatch of fertile eggs set was about ten per cent higher in lot 1 than in lot 2. Over a ten month period lot 2 produced 6 more eggs per bird than lot 1, but at a greater cost per dozen. These results, though not conclusive, indicate that the barley ration may be safely substituted for the corn ration."

In another study made by Mr. Moore of barley as a poultry feed, in which two lots of 150 and 200 chicks respectively were fed barley or corn, the cockerels were removed at ten weeks of age. Those fed barley weighed 86 grams each more than the birds fed corn. At the end of twenty weeks, the pullets fed barley weighed about 132 grams each more than the corn fed birds. The barley fed birds consumed more feed but the cost of a pound of gain and the mortality in both pens were practically the same. Many further reports show that corn is not an absolutely essential feed could be given.

If one kind of poultry feed is short the best substitutes available should be used. If corn is available and can be purchased at fair prices in comparison with other grains, it should be used as it is highly valuable poultry feed. Barley properly balanced with concentrates - fish oils - alfalfa or cereal grains and so forth will give just as good results as though the finest corn were fed.

If birds have not been reared on barley & refuse to eat it do not be disappointed. No trouble will be experienced with birds that have been fed barley from hatching time or that have been fed it during the rearing period, but birds that have been reared on wheat may refuse to eat barley if it is supplied them after they get into laying quarters. Be patient and the birds will gradually acquire a taste for it and in a short time will consume it just as well as they will good oats or wheat.

Use home grown grains and save exchange.

Beauty for YOU

The Secrets of Good Looks by Barbara Lynn

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Superfluous hair is an affliction to many women, and in these warm days tends to worry an increasing number, for warm weather increases the growth, even with some women not normally subject to it.

Readers ask: "Can this blemish be permanently removed?" Electrolysis is a method which needs to be carried out by really competent and expert operators to be effective and harmless. A new wax, which can be used in the privacy of one's own home, has given excellent results and I have no hesitation in recommending its use; it is safe and effective. I'll gladly tell you more about it if you will write me.

It is important to remember that a razor should not be used to remove superfluous hair from the face. It can be used under the armpits, but that is about all. Don't imagine too, that peroxide will curtail growth. Peroxide is simply a bleaching agent, and if you have but a slight growth on the face, a peroxide bleach might be all you require. Here is the recipe: Mix three table-spoons of peroxide with six drops of ammonia. If your skin is very tender, add another tablespoon of peroxide. Apply with a clean piece of absorbent cotton and allow to dry on the face.

Write to me for confidential advice, enclosing four one-cent stamps for my new booklet on Beauty Care.

It is now ILLEGAL to HOARD scrap steel or UNUSABLE machinery

The Steel Controller has ordered that, after September 15, 1942, no person may retain in his possession scrap iron or steel weighing a total of 500 pounds or more unless he has a permit.

(For the purposes of the new regulations, scrap metal includes machinery, structural steel, or any other article or commodity containing iron or steel, which is not serving an immediate vital purpose.)

The order also provides:

That anyone, coming into possession after September 15 of scrap iron or steel weighing 500 pounds or more, must dispose of it within 30 days.

That any person having a valid reason for not disposing of scrap metal as scrap metal or who believes that it can serve some essential purpose, must send in a report by September 15 to the Used Goods Administrator of the Wartime Price and Trade Board, Lunenburg Building, Toronto. His report must reveal the exact description, quantity, and location of his scrap metal.

The provisions of the order do not apply to scrap dealers who are already subject to previous orders; nor do they affect metal fabricators and processors who are in legal possession of metal to be used in manufacturing.

A copy of the order, S.C. 16, may be obtained from the Steel Controller, Department of Munitions and Supply, Ottawa.

Instructions of the new regulations are subject to a fine of up to $5,000, or imprisonment of up to five years, or both fine and imprisonment.

With the RCAF

By Flt. Lieut. T. G. McCall R.C.A.F.

By Flight Lieutenant T. G. McCall, Pilot Officer Johnny Higham, D.F.C. who is sitting across the narrow aisle from me as this is being written, puts this trip down as one of the most thrilling experiences of his life. At the moment the crew which only a few nights ago devastated Saarbrücken, changed aircraft upon returning to their base in Great Britain, and then flew across the Atlantic to become Canada's heroes of the hour, are high above the clouds over Northern Ontario. Our comfortable big Lockheed transport is hurtling along at a speed, which Johnny tells me is about the same as his old Wimpy's (Wellington bomber) cruising speed.

This is an experience that five young Canadian airmen will never forget.

"A year ago we were the chaps who were carrying rifles in a parade," Flight Sergeant Carl Sveinsson remarked after Montreal had given the group a tumultuous welcome. "Here we are today sitting in limousines. Boy, if the other chaps in our squadron could see us now."

There is one cloud on the lads' horizon but it is not causing them a great deal of concern. Airmen have a dread of being accused of "shooting a line" which is precisely what these lads are being asked to do several times a day. They know that when and if they return to their unit, the famous "Moose Squadron" of the R.C.A.F. they will be judged unmercifully for the speeches they have made in Canada, and the interviews which have been carried in every Canadian paper and over radio stations.

"Sure we'll take a lot of punishment," admits Flight Sergeant Biggy Lee, of Minnesota, Man, the navigator of the group, "but it's worth it to be able to go back there and tell what Canada thinks of its flyers overseas. You can bet that we'll tell them how wonderfully we were treated wherever we went. We'll tell them how, too, that 25 years ago a Canadian air crew was following them over."

It is a magnificent late summer day. From our 4,000 feet we have an almost unbroken expanse of sunlit clouds - thick, cotton-battled stuff that affords only an occasional glimpse of the dotted grey, green and blue of the Northern Ontario wilderness below.

Johnny has just finished telling me some more about that raid over Saarbrücken three nights ago. Whether, he says, is as great a memory of the Allied flyer as enemy risk or fighters. The other night was no exception. The crew had dropped their eggs - smack on the target, they will tell you proudly - and headed for home. Ahead lay the prospect of a magic-carpet journey over the Atlantic, and the accolades of millions of their own people. Good food, comfortable quarters, old friends and best of all the loved ones that they had left behind more than a year ago. Over the Channel they ran into nasty weather which got worse as they approached their own aerodrome. It was debatable whether "A for Apple" - their own ship - should attempt a landing at the home aerodrome, or go on to another where the weather was better. Once before their trip home had been washed out by similar circumstances. Because of the multiplicity of arrangements necessary, it was a good bet that if things went awry this time the plan would be scrapped. So down came "A for Apple" through clouds and fog. Half an hour later the crew was on its way to Canada.

Today they are a weary group of lads. Four of them—Flight Sergeants Siggy Lee, Carl Sveinsson, Art Leach and Don Morrison—are fast asleep in their seats. Pilot Officer Higham is studying an article in a pictorial magazine which describes the virtues of various types of aircraft. They never get very far away from flying. The day after landing back in Canada, Johnny was at the controls of the Anson bomber which flew us from Ottawa to Montreal. Then he piloted the same ship most of the way from Toronto to Montreal. Today he is casting envious eyes toward the co-pilot of our Lockheed and the briefing is down to one that before the kits touch down on the wheels, he will have served a stretch at the controls.

"I never had a chance to fly over this country while I was training," he says. "My advanced training was at Brantford and we were never permitted to go very far from our base." For a lad who got his wings just a year ago this month, Johnny has come - and gone - quite a way. He'll go a lot farther. The skill and modesty which have endeared him to the four lads whose fates he has largely held in his hands these many months are typical qualities of the youngsters who are flying for Canada today on all the world's battlefronts. As representatives of this ever-expanding body, Johnny Higham D.F.C., and the four lads who call this 25-year-old veteran "the old man" are ready to take up the job where they left off three nights ago so that, as their skipper says, "the next time we come home, it'll be for keeps."

WOMEN'S DIVISION R.C.A.F.

The old saying "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world" has been amended since the advent of "Total War." Today, the women are no longer content with the pursuit of happiness in the home, as they have realized that happiness in the home, or in the world for that matter, depends upon a quick and decisive elimination of the factors governing present day chaotic conditions.

To this end have the women of Canada rallied to the aid of their fathers and brothers serving the armed forces. They too, are donning the uniform and wearing the apron as they take their place as members of Canada's growing Forces.

The Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force holds a particular appeal to the girls as their duties as members of the Women's Division gives them an opportunity of sharing in the drama of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

The Royal Canadian Air Force has over twenty trade categories for the Women's Division and though in a great many cases the girls have not taken over duties on some trades it is because the initial training course for these trades has not yet been completed.

Clerks make up the bulk of the Airwomen now serving and in this category there is a half dozen various types of clerks including, accountants, general, operations room, medical, stenographer and stenographer medical.

The Medical branch in addition to clerks also uses the Women's Division for cooks, pharmacists, laboratory assistants, dispensers and dental assistants.

In the mechanical end of the Air Force the Airwomen are capably taking over such duties as Transport Driver, Equipment Assistant, Fabric Worker, Instrument Maker and Parachute Rigger. Other important duties the girls are assuming include such specialized trades as Wireless Operator (Ground), Tele-printer Operator, Radiographer, Photographer, Meteorologist, Telephone Operator and many others.

In and around the stations of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the Women's Division has taken on over a great many jobs classified as General Duties. Some girls are engaged in domestic duties which include cleaning offices, washrooms, dining halls and cook houses. Others are engaged in general employment such as messengers, runners, timekeepers in the control towers, sparkling tea, post office duties and work in the dry canteen. Messwomen and cooks are now feeding and serving the men in the dining halls.

Though all trades have not been enumerated here, it is possible to grasp the general occupations of the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force from the foregoing. In this series of articles each trade will be dealt with and more comprehensive detail given.

EQUIPMENT ASSISTANT. Every week of the current year has seen a group of Canadian girls, members of the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force, go on active service at one of the schools operated in Canada under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Of particular interest among these airwomen are those who choose the trade of Equipment Assistant. Theirs is a job that combines a salesgirl in a department store Saturday morning sale and a runner up in a $1,000 suit contest. Prior to enlistment she must have business experience in a large industrial firm or a commercial organization. Stock room experience and the purchasing and handling of merchandise is also desirable.

At Initial Training School the Airwoman begins to realize the magnitude that is the Equipment Section. Here she is taught the general organization of equipment Depots and Sections. She finds herself lost in a maze of forms used for accounting, transferring, purchasing and shipping of Royal Canadian Air Force equipment and materials.

Methods of preserving materials in stock is an important phase of her schooling as equipment allowed to deteriorate in the warehouse. Proper packing and storage is also of vital importance to preservation and prevention of damage and, in this particular attention is given to every detail.

Transfer of equipment between units is an involved process. The process to the uninitiated and unless proper vouchers and forms are correctly handled the shipment may be delayed or lost bringing serious consequences if it is vitally needed. Methods of obtaining stores varies with the classification of the material and here again proper demand and issue vouchers are necessary. Internal transactions, repayment issues, loss and damage, local purchase, clothing and messing, repair of equipment and a hundred and one more items go to make up the knowledge of the successful Equipment Assistant. She must learn to issue and exchange clothing stores, be capable of stock taking and looking after internal transaction inventories.

Members of the Women's Division who have taken over duties as Equipment Assistants, have taken their hurdles in their stride and their patience after a hard day of issuing equipment to a squadron is remarkable. They have learned to issue, exchange and return equipment, to make out demands for equipment both internal and from depots with a speed that is amazing and their natural inclination for attention to detail is a valuable asset in this important phase of Air Training.

LONDON'S TRAM LINES

Wrenched Up To Build Tanks And Battleships

Britain's old tram rails, tons of which are going into the melting-pot every day, will soon roll out of war factories all over the country in the shape of tanks, guns, and other arms.

The eighty-miles of tram rails abandoned in London since trolley-buses have taken the place of trams are made of high grade steel. All over London they are being wrenched up from the roads and more than half the work has been completed. Since it began last year, some 16,000 tons of metal have been recovered, and one London borough alone has taken up more than 2½ miles of track and sent it off to the metal depots. Other materials taken up are being used to restore the roads. Old granite paving, for example, is broken up to make asphalt.

Apart from tram lines, railings and iron gates all over Britain are yielding a steady flow of metal for arms production. More than 300,000 tons of metal have been recovered the equivalent in weight of about 12,500 Valentine tanks; or enough for the steel of thirteen 35,000-ton battleships.

Just under one half of the total is from London.

Hints for the Household

COMBINATIONS FOR CLEVER COOKS

Homemakers are making jams and jellies this year, despite the restricted supply of sugar. Yes, it can be done, and here are two methods that many women are adopting.

When light corn syrup is substituted for part of the sugar, follow these rules. In any recipe using liquid pectin, two cups light corn syrup may be substituted for two cups of the sugar required. Substitution of corn syrup should not be increased or the results will be unsatisfactory.

In recipes using powdered pectin, light corn syrup may be substituted for one-half the sugar required. In other words for each cup of sugar omitted, use one cup of light corn syrup.

Another way to have more jams and jellies is to can fruit or fruit juices without sugar, and later to make up small batches of jelly or jam at a time.

In preparing the fruit, follow the directions that are given in your favorite liquid or powdered fruit pectin recipes. Do not add water or simmer unless your directions specify these steps. And remember to squeeze the juice in a jelly bag if it is for jelly. After following these operations it is then important to pasteurize the fruit or juice.

To do this, fill hot sterilized jars to within ½ inch of the top. Seal partially and place on a rack in water bath at simmering temperature. Water should reach an inch or two above the jars. Bring water to simmering temperature again and keep it there twenty minutes for pints and thirty minutes for quarts. Remove jars from water and seal them completely at once. Then invert jars and allow them to cool away from a draft.

When you are ready to make your fruit or juices into jams and jellies follow your favorite liquid fruit pectin recipe for fresh fruit jam or jelly, substituting ½ cup of strained lemon juice for ¼ cup of the prepared fruit or juice specified. When using the powdered fruit pectin, follow the recipe exactly for fresh fruit jam or jelly.

Remember that this summer's fruit in sweet spreads will enhance next winter's meals!

When the man of the house gives a party, a wise wife prepares plenty of cheese and cold cuts—and disappears.

Nowadays, when most men are doubling up at the office and working overtime, it's a wise wife who encourages the man of the house to give a party to his favorite cronies. She's doubly wise if she leaves in the ice box plenty of cold cuts, relishes and an assortment of desert cheeses.

Gallant Sea Officer Honored

CAPTAIN PERCY AMBROSE KELLY, Chief Officer of the Canadian National Steamship "Lady Hawkins" when that vessel was sunk by an enemy submarine on the night of February 19, 1942, was recently honored by the Dominion Government for conspicuous gallantry shown on that occasion. The testimonial took the form of a silver tray on which the following inscription was engraved:

"Presented by the Government of Canada to Percy Ambrose Kelly, Chief Officer, R.M.S. Lady Hawkins, for meritorious conduct when the vessel was sunk without warning by an enemy submarine on the night of February 19, 1942."

The presentation took place in the Nova Scotia hotel at Halifax. Captain Kelly receiving the government's token at the hands of C. H. Hosterman, Marine Agent for the Department of Transport at Halifax, representing Hon. C. D. Howe, Acting Transport Minister.

On Mr. Kelly's right is Captain Charles Waterhouse, Superintendent of Ports, Halifax, in the centre background is W. G. Miller, Halifax manager, Canadian National Steamships, who represented R. B. Teakle, General Manager, Standing in the foreground next to Mr. Hosterman is Arthur Randles, Director of Merchant Seamen at Ottawa.

A message of congratulation from Mr. Teakle said: "Mr. Kelly throughout the trying period displayed the high qualities of those who go down to the sea in ships."

Captain Kelly was in charge of a lifeboat containing 76 persons which was about four days before being sighted by a rescue ship. The official account of the event cites that "Captain Kelly showed gallantry in staying to assist in the lowering of other boats after his own was safely away. His judgment in all things was above discussion. His leadership and friendly discipline were first-class. His seamanship was good. Not one person in the lifeboat ever criticized him. All considered him deserving of honor."

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE

IN CASE OF
WAR DAMAGE TO PROPERTY

OWNERS OF PROPERTY ARE URGED TO INSURE AGAINST LOSS BY ENEMY ACTION

The Government of Canada, by Act of Parliament, has set up a Plan of War Risk Insurance against damage to property caused by enemy action—by countermeasures taken against the enemy—by explosions of war munitions handled by third parties.

In terms of general information, it may be stated that the Plan provides a certain limited FREE COMPENSATION for damage to owner-occupied homes and to chattels, but the main feature of the Plan is that owners of most types of property can protect their property by PURCHASE of GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE at very moderate rates.

This type of War Risk Insurance is not being sold today by private insurance companies, because of the risk involved. Consequently, the Government has established a national scheme to make it possible for each citizen in Canada to purchase the sense of security that comes from knowing that if his property does suffer war damage (and the war has come much closer to Canada in the last twelve months) he can call on the resources of Canada to help him make good his property loss.

HOW TO OBTAIN GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE

The Fire Insurance Agents and Companies of Canada have volunteered to the Government the services of their extensive facilities and personnel, on a non-profit basis, thus avoiding the setting up of the large organization that otherwise would be needed to handle details of this nation-wide Government War Risk Insurance scheme.

YOUR FIRE INSURANCE AGENT OR COMPANY WILL GLADLY SUPPLY COMPLETE DETAILS OF THIS GOVERNMENT INSURANCE PLAN.

THIS ANNOUNCEMENT IS PUBLISHED so that the public may have notice of the Government War Risk Insurance Scheme. The information given above is not intended to be a complete resume of the Scheme. Full information regarding conditions, exclusions, etc., is available elsewhere.

TO HOME OWNERS HOUSEHOLDERS AND OTHERS

Limited free compensation is provided under the Act for War Damage by enemy action to owner-occupied homes up to $5,000. Damage to Household's Chattels, up to $400—for those of his wife, up to $400 for each child under 16, up to $100—for others, not householders, up to $200.

No policies are needed in this classification but insurance additional to the above amounts may be purchased.

Ask any Fire Insurance Agent or Company for complete details.
